Adjutant General's Notice. The order for the parade, signed by

Maj. J. C. Castner, adjutant general, follows: The National Guard of the District of The National Guard of the District of Columbia will participate in the preparedness parade on June 14. 1916. The importance of showing the public the position of the National Guard on this vital question is self-evident, and no other word should be needed to make possible the presence of every officer and enlisted man in the column on this occasion.

The bridage will be formed on New Jersey avenue, head of column resting on B street northwest, and will be ready to march at 9.15 a.m. June 14. 1916.

No animals will be furnished, the field artillery, cavalry and Signal Corpe marching dismounted as infantry.

The committee has been notified that about 2,500 employes of the government printing office plan to be in the line of march. This information came today in a letter from J. L. Alverson, chief clerk of the office. Whether the government printing office delegation will have any floats in its unit was not stated.

The Florists' Club of Washington expects to have about 200 marchers in line, and other organizations which notified the parade committee today that they expect to participate in the demonstration were Moody's Rangers, a boys' organization; the Emergency and Receiving Home for Children and Needy Women and the Graduate Nurse Association.

In an effort to avoid "eleventh-hour" rushes the parade committee is making a determined effort to get everything in readiness as soon as possible. Organizations which have not signified their intention of participating in the demonstration are being urged to reach a decision without delay and send in an application for a position in the line of march. Persons who have delayed in sending in subscriptions to the fund being raised to defray the necessary expenses in connection with the parade also are being urged to get busy at once.

ganizations and the District volunteers, who intend to march in the preparedness parade, was held last night in the National Guard armory, under the auspices of the Military Service Legion, and was presided over by its president, Col. R. D. Simms.

The meeting, however, was not confined to members of the legion, as all former guardsmen and members of independent organizations were present, and expressed their desire to march.

Final arrangements will be made for ceeding immediately to nominations, then discussed means to quiet the up-roar. "Let them yell," counseled one of the leaders. "Now that they have shouted, it will be easier to delay action on a nomination."

A proposal to use the uniformed police to quell the demonstration was decided that the experiment was too dangerous. By this time some of the enthusiasts who had been waving bandannas became dissatisfied with their efforts, so they took off their coats and waved them about their heads. He explained to the delegates that it was necessary for the committees to have time for their work. If the much discussed "uncontrollable element" had any idea of brooking no delay and proceeding at once to the nomination of Col. Roosevelt they gave no evidence of it but seemed satisfied.

"I for one promise that there shall be no unnecessary delay." Mr. Robins told them. "We shall move just as fast as possible." With that the convention adjourned until this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

That ended it. The announcement of temporary committees followed and the first day's session of the convention was over. The prediction that the leaders would not be able to hold their delegates from the nomination of Col. Roosevelt at the mention of his name had not materialized. How long they will be able to control them, however, is conceded by the progressive leaders themselves to be doubtful.
